Murder victim's family sues Medco

Suit alleges nursing facility failed to monitor drugs

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

A civil suit has been filed against a local nursing home, alleging it failed to supervise a former employee who has been charged with murdering her husband.

Kathleen Wise, 61, of 4203 Bengal Road in Campbellsville, was indicted last July by a Taylor County grand jury and charged with the first-degree murder of her husband, Joseph Kenneth Wise. If convicted, she faces as much as life in prison. She has formally pleaded not guilty to the crime, and the prosecution has said it will not seek the death penalty.

According to court records, Wise allegedly admitted that she added liquid morphine to her husband's drinking water June 7, 2011.

A little more than a year after Mr. Wise's death, a civil complaint has been filed alleging that Wise may not be the only person responsible for his death.

On June 7, Louisville attorney Paul Casi II filed a complaint on the behalf of Greg Wise, who is serving as the administrator of Mr. Wise's estate.

Listed as defendants are several Extendicare Homes Inc. subsidiaries, including Medco Center of Campbellsville, and Karen Moore, who is a registered nurse and the director of nursing at Medco. Extendicare is based in Milwaukee, Wis.

The complaint states that Mrs. Wise was employed at Medco as a staff registered nurse and assistant director of nursing.

According to the complaint, Mr. Wise died June 8, 2011, from what were suspected to be natural causes. However, routine toxicology tests

County has full-time technology employee

City and county will no longer share information technology worker

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

Taylor County will now employ its own information technology support employee, after Campbellsville City Council members voted at a recent meeting to no longer share that employee with the county.

IT Specialist Tony Smith currently works for both the city and county. The city pays 40 percent of Smith's salary, with the county paying the remaining 60.

At a City Council meeting on Monday, June 4, Campbellsville Mayor Tony Young said the city has many server systems and needs its own IT employee. He asked that the Council approve creating a full-time position, which equates to a salary of about $43,000 a year.

Young said at the meeting that he had contact with Taylor County Judge/Executive Eddie Rogers and many of the magistrates about breaking the current contract to share the IT employee. The Council unanimously approved to create the position.

It costs $12 and has the potential to save lives.

Taylor Regional Hospital hosted its annual community health fair on Saturday, and about 1,300 people attended.

Those who attended could get a general health panel performed for $12, regardless of whether they have health insurance.

The health panel includes a complete blood count and comprehensive metabolic, thyroid stimulating hormone and coronary risk profiles. Prostate screening was available for men for an additional $8.

Nearly 820 people had the blood work performed this year. About 600 people had the work done at last year's fair.

While about 1,000 people had pre-registered to have the blood work done, TRH CEO Jane Wheatley said she and other hospital staff are pleased with the turnout.

Wheatley said the hospital has offered the health fair off and on for many years. In the past six to seven years, she said, the event has become much more robust.

For the past five to six years, Wheatley said, the fair has been offered at various locations in the community to accommodate a growing crowd. Doing so also allows TRH to invite vendors to provide health and other information.

Contractor strike continues at Taylor Regional Hospital

No labor agreement between workers, construction company

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

It's been nearly three weeks and they're still standing firm.

Workers are still on strike at the Taylor Regional Hospital surgical center construction site. The strike began on June 4 after contract negotiations stalled.

TRH CEO Jane Wheatley said there have been additional employees hired to perform the work of those who have gone on strike. As such, she says the tentative Oct. 8 opening date for the center shouldn't have to be delayed.

Several workers with Wehr Constructors Inc. who belong to a carpenters union group began the strike, demanding that Wehr use all union carpenters.

Wehr Constructors Inc. is based in Louisville and has an office in Florida. The business also has a location in Campbellsville.

Larry Hujo, a senior staff representative for the Indiana/Kentucky/Ohio Regional Council of Carpenters, said Wehr had a contract with the workers that expired on May 31. Negotiations to renew the contract began but have failed. As a result, the workers went on strike.

"They were making demands that we just could not agree to," he said earlier this month. Hugo said other carpenters have signed Wehr's contracts, but those in his union haven't.

"We believe they're making demands that we just can't live with," he said.

On Tuesday, Hujo said a bargaining team has been working with the employees who have gone on strike, but no progress has been made. He said they didn't anticipate that the strike would last nearly three weeks.

"We hoped it wouldn't," he said. "Right now, we're not where we need to be, I guess."

The regional council began picketing 11 construction sites in several locations earlier this month, including Louisville, Lexington, New Castle and at TRH.

"It's an unfortunate situation for everyone when that happens," Hujo said when the strike began.

Most of the construction jobs with Wehr are subcontracted, so only a few working on the TRH project are involved in the strike.

The workers Hujo represents are performing typical commercial carpentry work for the TRH project, such as millwork, doors, concrete, drywall and more.

Hujo said officials wish the strike would end soon.

"I hope they're still working on it," he said on Tuesday. "We're still hopeful."

Wheatley said earlier this month that both Wehr and TRH support using qualified workers who will work for the lowest wage. On Tuesday, she said the strike has caused no disruption in the construction of the three-story surgical center.

Wheatley said the workers who have stepped in for those on strike are receiving a prevailing wage.

TRH is planning an open house for the new surgical center on Sunday, Sept. 9, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Eleven die on Kentucky roadways

Nearly 60 deaths have been the result of suspected alcohol use in 2012

Preliminary statistics indicate that 11 people died in 11 separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Monday, June 11, through Sunday, June 17. Seven of the fatalities involved motor vehicles and four victims were not wearing seat belts. Single fatality crashes occurred in Boone, Hardin, Jefferson, Laurel, Letcher, McCracken and Warren counties. The crashes in Letcher and McCracken counties involved the suspected use of alcohol. There were four motorcycle-involved fatalities that occurred in Fayette, Jefferson and Perry counties. Two were in Jefferson County.

Through June 17, preliminary statistics indicate that 337 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2012. This is 44 more fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2011.

There have been 278 motor vehicle fatalities and 158 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Thirty-two of those crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle. Thirty-one crashes involved a motorcycle and sixteen victims were not wearing helmets. Three crashes involved an ATV and two victims were not wearing helmets. Twenty-four crashes involved a pedestrian and one involved a bicycle.

Fifty-eight deaths have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

Residents can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the KSP toll-free at (800) 222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous. Give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number, if possible.

FSA county committee nominations will be accepted through Aug. 1

Ballots will be mailed in November, must be submitted by Dec. 3

Kentucky's USDA Farm Service Agency State Executive Director John McCauley recently announced that local Farm Service Agency county committee nominations have begun.

"I urge all farmers and ranchers to participate in this year's county committee elections by nominating candidates by the Aug. 1 deadline," he said. "County committees are a vital link between the farm community and the U.S. Department of Agriculture and provide a voice to landowners, farmers and ranchers so that they have an opportunity for their opinions and ideas to be heard."

To be eligible to serve on a FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and live in the local administrative area in which the person is a candidate.

Farmers and ranchers can nominate themselves or others and organizations representing minorities and women can also nominate candidates.

To become a candidate, an eligible individual must sign the nomination form, which is available online at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. Nomination forms must be postmarked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of the business day on Aug. 1. Elections will be this fall.

While FSA county committees do not approve or deny farm-operating loans, they make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are about 7,700 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees. Committees consist of three to 11 members elected by eligible producers.

FSA will mail ballots to eligible voters beginning Nov. 5. The voted ballots are due back to the local county office either via mail or in person by Dec. 3. Newly elected committee members and alternates take office Jan. 1.

On June 4, Secretary Vilsack announced his intention to strengthen the FSA county committee system by appointing voting members from the socially disadvantaged community in county jurisdictions that lack fair representation. The goal is to ensure locally elected representatives reflect the diverse interests of their communities.

State launches new child support website to enhance customer service

Site allows visitors to apply for support, make and estimate payments

The Kentucky Child Support Enforcement Program has launched a new customer service website to better assist the families it serves.

The new website is <http://csws.chfs.ky.gov/csws>.

The site allows the general public and employers to securely access their cases and account information, apply for child support, locate a child support office, make payments and estimate a child support payment. Visitors to the website will also be able to view child support news bulletins.

Child Support Enforcement is part of the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services Department for Income Support. Child support staff and contractors in every county provide assistance to parents with minor children seeking financial support from a noncustodial parent. Cabinet for Health and Family Services Secretary Audrey Tayse Haynes said the new website was created with the best interests of child support customers and their employers in mind.

"This one-stop website will make it easier for non-custodial and custodial parents to find answers to their questions while ultimately increasing access to more resources to help parents care for their children," she said. DIS Deputy Commissioner Steve Veno said the website is a vital tool in managing child support in Kentucky. "We can provide better client service, and we will see increased collections and greater compliance because of the ease of this site," he said. "Our customers have long asked for more self-service options, and we are answering that request with this new website."

Veno said because the website will help provide answers to general questions about child support, it will alleviate long waits for customers calling the child support hotline (800) 248-1163 for more in-depth information.

In state fiscal year 2011, the Child Support Enforcement office collected more than $407 million in child support payments.

"Any amount of child support is valuable to the children receiving it," Veno said. "Simplifying the payment process contributes to our children's safety, health and well-being, and that's our goal with this new website."

Veno said participants who establish accounts will be able to access information related to their child support cases along with bulletins and appointment information. They will be able to update personal data, including employment information, direct deposit (for custodial parents), and health and military records. Case summaries that include current status and payment history will also be available just for members.

Participants may also upload records and new information for their caseworkers to access. Customers and caseworkers will also have the ability to simultaneously co-browse the same information.

Another portal of the website allows department staff to analyze specific or general data and perform searches for hard-to-locate parents.

City should rethink its new social media policy

The way social media has taken over society today, it's understandable that an organization like the city of Campbellsville would feel the need to have a policy related to its use by employees. However, we believe the policy could have been handled much differently.

First, it seems that Campbellsville City Council members who voted in favor of the new policy rushed to do so. The policy passed by a vote of 9-3, but the only public discussion about it was during the meeting where the issue was presented. In other instances, the city creates committees and talks over issues at length. It seems that with this issue, there was a rush to create a policy for the sake of having one.

Among the discussion points could be how to handle violations. It could involve anything from a reprimand to termination, and that's fine. But what if the violation is severe, and comes from a Council member? They are elected, and cannot be fired. Just a thought, and one of many questions that arise when giving even brief thought to this new policy.

Next, and most importantly, the legality of the policy has some concerning issues. To have a statement made by City Attorney John Miller that city employees must give up some rights to be city employees is odd, but he said it.

"I guess to a certain extent, your freedom of speech is limited, if you want to have a job." That statement was made by Miller at the June 4 meeting, and was printed in the News-Journal on June 11.

While we are not lawyers, it simply doesn't appear to be fair that in order to have a job, a person would have to surrender some of the rights granted them by the United States Constitution.

The policy is no doubt intended to prohibit damaging information from being spread, but employees also cannot make mention of their employment with the city or even post positive information such as photos of themselves in a city uniform, according to the new policy. This type of ruling appears to actually limit some good aspects that could be shared about the city, such as a police officer who is proud to serve our city.

Limiting free speech and telling people what they can and cannot say doesn't sound like a policy from a government, it sounds like a decree from a dictatorship. We don't think that's what the city of Campbellsville and its Council members intend, but the rush to pass this policy gives a bad impression.

Like many companies, including several in our community that have policies about social media use, the city should have taken the common sense approach and deal with violations when they arise, rather than coming out of the gate and telling people to prepare to give up the right to free speech if they want to continue to work for the government they elected to office in the first place.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Benefit auction thanks

On behalf of Michael, Becky, Harold and Eunonia Mardis, the Greer family and the Reverence for Christ Community Church, we would like to express our gratitude to all those that helped with Michael Mardis' benefit auction.

We truly appreciate all of the businesses, churches, the Knifley Area Fire Department, auctioneers, private donors and all of the wonderful people in both communities who donated items, money and/or food to help with this benefit.

We could not have had the blessed outcome without all your generosity and loving support. It is truly a blessing to have communities that are so giving.

WHAT IS AN EDITORIAL?

An editorial is the newspaper's view on a particular issue. In developing editorials, employees of the newspaper consider what, in their collective view, is best for the community. Editorials are meant to suggest a course of action and to foster discussion on issues important to the community.

Auctioning memories

"I've got $1, will anybody give me $2?"
For the most part, no one would.

It was painful to watch the man who didn't know my family selling my family's possessions to the highest bidder.

My family auctioned my grandfather's home and his possessions earlier this month. We had to.

As you may have read before, my grandfather now lives in a veterans' home and has only moments of clarity after two serious strokes. He doesn't know that his home has been sold or that his possessions now belong to someone else. We just couldn't tell him. He wouldn't have remembered anyway.

I knew going to the auction would be hard for all of us. I watched as people pawed through my grandfather's possessions looking for a valuable find.

Auctions happen all the time, I know, and they generally attract people looking to pay a few bucks and get something worth $100. That's just how it goes.

But auctions have always seemed sad to me, like a display of everything left that the family doesn't want any longer and needs to disappear.

We spent months sorting through my grandparents' possessions and keeping what means something to us.

At the auction, I quietly watched as strangers looked at my grandmother's dish sets that she used to cook many a family dinner. I saw people looking through the "junk" that everyone seems to collect over the years.

Some people were interested in buying my grandfather's bed, television set and rocking chair. It hurt when people looked through the items my grandfather considered valuable possessions and bid $1 for them. It would have hurt him, too.

I panicked when I saw my grandmother's handmade quilts on a table ready to be purchased by strangers. They now rest on my bed and my grandmother's quilt rack, which has a new home at my house. It might seem strange, but I feel comforted when I sleep under a quilt she made. Other family members got some of her handmade creations, too.

I learned a valuable life lesson during the auction.

Yes, a person's "stuff" is important and having it helps us to remember them long after they are gone. But it's not what is most important.

What is most important is that we remember the many wonderful times we spent at the house that no longer belongs to us. Those can't be sold.

I'll admit, tears came to my eye when the auctioneer sold my grandfather's home. I was fine until I looked at the man who was buying the home in which I had spent so much time as a child. He looks like a grandfather himself.

And while the day was sad for my family, I also took away some happiness, too.

I remember the Christmas when we found a mouse under the tree with our presents.

I remember when my grandmother gave me a bath as a little girl and I slept in her bed at night, tucked in tightly with her and my grandfather.

I remember playing with my cousins on the farm and feeding Pickles, the goat.

I remember my dog, Charlie, who lived on their farm.

I remember that my grandparents loved me, even if one is now gone and the other doesn't always remember who I am.

Those memories are priceless.

GUEST COLUMN

Pick it up and read it!

No, I don't mean the Bible, although I read it every day. But for now, I'm referring to the newspaper.

"Ahh, the newspaper," you say. "You mean that old dinosaur of the printed era that's somehow managed to stay alive, despite its shrinking advertising revenue and a dwindling subscriber base?"

Despite rumors of its demise, the newspaper is surviving, and in some instances, thriving.

I know that's the exception and not the norm. According to a 2010 Harris Poll, one in 10 American adults say they never read a daily newspaper, and only two of five read a daily newspaper, either online or in print.

That's really not surprising, since Americans read less today. According to a 2007 study by the National Endowment of the Humanities, reading levels among young adults has plummeted over the last two decades. The average person between ages 15 and 24 spends two to two and a half hours a day watching TV and seven minutes reading.

So, I was shocked but probably shouldn't have been when I read that The Times-Picayune, the paper of New Orleans, La., established in 1837 and winner of several Pulitzer Prizes, will scale down its print edition to three days a week this fall, as will several other newspapers owned by its parent company.

Newspapers have long been a part of my life. Many times, after a day in elementary school, I would wait on my front porch for the afternoon delivery of the Altus Times-Democrat. We subscribed to several newspapers. Back then, the Daily Oklahoman had a morning edition as well as an evening edition, The Oklahoma City Times. I devoured both, as well as the morning edition of The Lawton Constitution. Occasionally, Dad would purchase the Times Record News of Wichita Falls, Texas, but I looked with skepticism upon anything from the Longhorn State.

Sunday afternoon, having feasted on Mom's delicious pot roast, was given to reading the newspaper. My brothers and father would divide out the sections of the paper, and soon they would be strewn about the den, one section on the couch, another across the recliner, each waiting to be read by one of us.

Today, I subscribe to several newspapers, and whenever I'm visiting another town or city, I make sure to get a local paper, for each has its unique features reflective of its constituency.

Newspapers keep me aware of the world in which I happen to live.

As blogger Tracey Dickerson has noted, it was the great Swiss theologian, Karl Barth, who in an interview with Time Magazine in 1966, advised young theologians "to take your Bible and take your newspaper, and read both. But interpret newspapers from your Bible."

Barth was reminding believers that although they are not to be of the world, they are yet in it, and as such, they should know the world in which they live. Moreover, Christians should be a discerning, reflective people.

But believers certainly haven't cornered the market on thinking. Whether you think like a theologian or are simply a thinker, the newspaper can stimulate your mind to a broader awareness of what's going on in the world around you, whether it's news about the local community, municipal government, available jobs, the nation or broader geo-political issues that affect us all, often unknowingly.

Of course, when Barth spoke those words, the Internet didn't exist, nor did CNN or Fox News. We have access to news 24/7, through dozens of portals, more news than we can digest.

It shouldn't be a question of either/or, but an affirmation of both the Internet and the printed page.

The question we must ask ourselves is, what's the quality of the news reports we are getting? Are we receiving information based on thorough investigative reporting?

It's easy to watch any number of news talk shows. I do on occasion. While interesting, and often hosted by knowledgeable and talented people, they are usually, by the very nature of the ratings race, skewed toward drama, hype and superficiality.

The challenge for newspapers is to provide the financial resources for quality reporting, whether it's reporting by a local or regional paper or one of the major dailies.

How then can newspapers survive? Billionaire Warren Buffett, who is in the process of purchasing 26 daily newspapers and has had success with others, writes that newspapers fail when one more of the following factors are present: the town or city has more than one competing daily, the newspaper is no longer the primary source of information for the readers or the town or city does not have a "pervasive identity."

Surviving and even thriving is a challenge, but it's worth the try, and that brings me back to Karl Barth. I've got my Bible in one hand: I've read where it will last forever. It's the newspaper that concerns me, for without it, my application of the Bible to the world would be diminished.

Relay for Life events are tomorrow

Group hopes to raise $40,000 for research

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

This year's Relay for Life fundraiser is set to begin tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Jamaal Stiles is the chair of this year's event, which will be at the Taylor County High School track.

The theme is "Colors of Cancer," representing the many different colors that represent different types of cancer.

Stiles said bands Forgiven and Driven will perform, and there will be games for adults and children.

Opening ceremonies will begin at 8 p.m. The luminaria ceremony will be at 10 p.m. Other special events will follow and are listed in a schedule of events with this story.

Stiles said 21 teams are registered to participate, and that number has increased from last year.

He said there hasn't been a lot of participation in Relay for Life for the past few years.

This year's events are focused on rebuilding the event.

Stiles said the fund-raising goal is about $40,000.

As of last week, $23,000 has been raised toward that goal.

Money raised is given to the American Cancer Society to help pay for research, travel expenses and lodging for cancer patients.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Friday, June 22

- 6 p.m. — Wrist bands for inflatables available for $5.
- 7 to 7:45 p.m. — Survivor registration and meal, food and luminarias on sale.
- 8 p.m. — Opening ceremonies, faces of cancer speaker, introduction of survivors, survivor lap, caregivers lap, introduction of teams and teams lap.
- 9 p.m. — Laps begin, live music.
- 10 p.m. — Luminaria sales stop.
- 10:30 p.m. — Luminaria ceremony.

Saturday, June 23

- Midnight to 1 a.m. — Dance off.
- 1 to 2 a.m. — Relay for Life scavenger bingo.
- 2 to 3 a.m. — Bunco.
- 3 to 4 a.m. — Cornhole.
- 4 to 5 a.m. — Zumba.
- 5 to 6 a.m. — Board games.
- 6 to 7 a.m. — Breakfast bingo.
- 7 to 8 a.m. — Closing ceremonies with awards.

COMMUNITY NOTE

Hiestand House to host ribbon cutting, open house

The Hiestand House-Taylor County Museum will host a ribbon cutting for its servant quarters on Tuesday, June 26, at 10 a.m. After a brief dedication ceremony, the museum will be open at no charge to the public to tour its exhibits on Taylor County history. Refreshments will be served.

The Stotts family from Cumberland County will be operating a spinning wheel and demonstrating some weaving. Lists of Taylor County natives in the American Revolution, the War of 1812, Mexican War, Civil War and World War I and II will be available.

A tool collection, pictures of country stores, African American history, old Taylor County postcards, vintage clothing, history of Fruit of the Loom, the Atchley family colonial loom, an exhibit of Campbellsville in 1861 are some of the items on display.

Some guides will be outfitted in vintage dress.

On Sunday, July 1, the Hiestand House-Taylor County Museum will host an open house from 3 to 5 p.m. A special program at 3 p.m. will feature Terry Foody, a certified clinical research coordinator for the University of Kentucky, who will speak on infectious diseases in the 1830s, particularly the cholera epidemic of 1833.

During the 1800s, cholera and other diseases swept through Kentucky. In 1833, cholera killed one-tenth of Lexington's population in a few weeks. It came to Taylor and Green counties more than once.

The program is funded partially by the Kentucky Humanities Council and the National Endowment for the Humanities. It is free and open to the public. The museum is open Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Saturdays by appointment. Admission is charged when there is no open house event.

Taylor County students learn with PRIDE

Local liaison works with nearly 1,000 students

Nature came to life in classrooms in Taylor County during the past school year, thanks to the PRIDE Environmental Education Outreach Program.

The program sent 15 environmental education liaisons into schools in 22 counties, reaching a total of 36,825 students between September 2011 and this past May.

In Taylor County, liaison Shellie Kendall worked with 989 students in Taylor County and Campbellsville Independent Schools.

Like all liaisons, Kendall's goal was to help students prepare for state science tests and develop life-long environmental stewardship skills.

Liaisons taught lessons and led hands-on activities that covered a span of environmental topics including energy, botany, ecosystems, wildlife concepts, solid waste and water quality. They partnered with teachers to complement their classroom instruction.

The liaisons focused on third-, fourth- and fifth-grade classes. They also worked with all grade levels involved in PRIDE Clubs, which explore environmental issues and perform community service.

"Ms. Kendall promoted an interest in PRIDE Clubs in the schools that did not have one, and her students were involved in a poster contest for community awareness of PRIDE Spring Cleanup Month in April," said PRIDE's Tammie Wilson.

"Students really turn on when PRIDE liaisons lead hands-on activities that bring to life lessons they've been learning in class," Wilson said. "Environmental education is a great tool for practicing a variety of skills, from math to problem solving."

"Teacher evaluations of the liaisons were excellent and showed great interest in continuing the program," Wilson said. "I want to thank our liaisons, who are so creative and enthusiastic. They enjoy interacting with students and teaming with teachers."

"We are grateful to the local governments, school boards, utility companies and others who partnered with us to bring the program to their counties, as well as the superintendents, principals and teachers who welcomed PRIDE into their schools this year. You are to be commended for investing in your students and our environment."

PRIDE offers the Environmental Education Outreach Program in 38 counties of southern and eastern Kentucky. In each county, local leaders pay a fee, based on student population, to enroll their schools.

PRIDE is a nonprofit organization that promotes "Personal Responsibility In a Desirable Environment" in southern and eastern Kentucky. PRIDE works with communities to improve water quality, clean up solid waste problems and increase environmental awareness. PRIDE was founded in 1997.

Orientations help new students adapt to campus life

Are welcomed, make friends

ELLIE MCKINLEY
Campbellsville University

One student said it was the warm welcome she got at Campbellsville University, and another said she made friends she knows who will help her as she begins classes.

Both students were discussing what they experienced during CU's first LINC sessions June 7-9, when 275 students and commuters attended the first of several sessions in the summer.

"One of the most exciting yet anxious transitions to face for students is the shift from high school to college," Jodi Allen, dean of student services, said.

"While it may seem nerve-racking at first, feeling a peace on a selected university campus can help lead a student to a bright and successful future. Campbellsville University desires her students to experience this peace and they accomplish this through their LINC orientation," she said.

While attending LINC, which stands for Learn in a new environment, Invest in your future, Navigate life changes and Connect to Campbellsville, students complete a two-day orientation in which they stay overnight to experience what their new home away from home will be like.

During the first day, students make their way around campus talking with staff from the Offices of Financial Aid and Business Services, receiving their parking decals and UPOs, completing a Compass Test and visiting the Barnes and Noble Bookstore.

Later in the evening, students participate in a variety of activities planned by Andrew Ward, director of student activities. These activities enable students to get involved and connect with each other.

The next day is filled with academic advice in which students will meet with their advisors to plan their schedules. While it may seem stressful at first for the new students, advisors and LINC workers are prepared to motivate and encourage them, Allen said.

There will be two other future LINC events, on July 13 and 14 and Aug. 2 and 3.

Campbellsville student earns veterinary degree

Andy Pike of Campbellsville has earned a doctor of veterinary medicine degree from Auburn University's College of Veterinary Medicine as a member of the class of 2012.

Pike earned a degree in agriculture in 2004 from Western Kentucky University, and he is a 1999 graduate of Taylor County High School.

The veterinary program at Auburn is the oldest in the south and the nation's seventh oldest.

More than 6,300 doctors of veterinary medicine have graduated since the first degrees were officially awarded in 1909.

Less is More

As the average age of our population increases, the movement to "downsize" becomes more popular. Less to maintain means more time for a relaxed lifestyle and more free time. There is time for family and time to volunteer still vital energy for worthy causes in the community. As earthly baggage is reduced, there is time and energy to increase participation in God's earthly kingdom...to serve as spiritual mentors to those still caught up in the busiest part of their lives. Share the wisdom that comes with age at your house of worship; spend more time with God's family.

revealed that he had consumed a fatal dose of morphine.

Court records state that a toxicology report stated that 5,738 ng/ml of morphine were found in Mr. Wise's blood and 1,359 ng/ml in his urine. The normal therapeutic ranges, according to court records, are from 10 to 80 ng/ml.

On July 21, 2011, the complaint states, an audit was performed at Medco that concluded that morphine, which is a controlled drug, had not been properly destroyed at the facility. The complaint also states that officials weren't able to properly account for morphine that had been delivered to Medco.

The complaint states that Mrs. Wise gave Mr. Wise the drugs that caused his death and that she got them while working at Medco.

As such, the complaint alleges, Medco was negligent in supervising Mrs. Wise, which was a substantial factor in her husband's death.

The complaint states that Medco failed to implement a record keeping system as to the receipt and disposition of controlled drugs. It also alleges the negligence is how Mrs. Wise was able to access morphine to kill her husband. Medco was negligent in that its staff should have known, the complaint states, that Mrs. Wise was "incompetent, careless and/or reckless." The complaint alleges that Extendicare and its subsidiaries were negligent in overseeing the operations and management of its facilities.

Moore, the complaint states, failed to supervise Mrs. Wise, which led to her access to morphine.

Greg Wise is seeking punitive damages, compensation for Mr. Wise's lost ability to earn money and compensation for funeral and burial costs and physical and mental pain and suffering. He has also requested a jury trial.

Nelda Beard, administrator of Medco, referred comment on her and Moore's behalf to a statement made by Mike Perry, area vice president of Extendicare. Perry's statement was released Tuesday afternoon. According to the news release, Perry stated, "While our sympathies go out to the family of Mr. Wise, we believe that there is no factual or legal foundation for this lawsuit against Extendicare or Medco Center of Campbellsville. This lawsuit has nothing to do with the care or services provided by our center, and Mr. Wise was never a resident there.

"Medco Center of Campbellsville is an excellent skilled nursing center and recently received a deficiency-free survey by the Kentucky Office of Inspector General. We are confident that neither the center nor Extendicare played any role in Mr. Wise's passing.

"This lawsuit is emblematic of the unfortunate tidal wave of meritless litigation against skilled nursing providers that has become the norm in the commonwealth of Kentucky. We intend to vigorously defend this lawsuit with all of the resources at our disposal."

Casi did not return a phone call before press time to comment on the complaint.

Wise is expected to face a jury of her peers on July 30.

Nearly 1,300 people attended Saturday's health fair sponsored by Taylor Regional Hospital. The health fair offered complete blood count and comprehensive metabolic, thyroid stimulating hormone and coronary risk profiles, as well as several booths with information from local medical organizations.

mation. Wheatley said the fair began when hospital staff noticed there were many people in the community who needed lab work performed, but some didn't have the means to pay for the work or insurance. No insurance information was required at the fair, Wheatley said.

TRH staff members performed all of the lab work over the weekend. Results are already being sent to those who had the tests performed. The analysis will come to their homes in the mail, Wheatley said, and to their doctor's offices.

If those who had the tests done didn't specify a doctor to send the results, a copy of the blood work has been sent to the hospital's urgent care center.

"If there's something abnormal, they will be called," she said.

Wheatley said the hospital's health fair has yielded some abnormal results. She said a fair at Campbellsville University found an abnormal prostate screening.

Overall, Wheatley said, the lab work performed at the fair could potentially save someone's life by detecting health problems that could lead to strokes or other ailments. She said the lab work has often caught high cholesterol levels.

Wheatley said she sees TRH offering the fair as a community service.

"We feel like we're a community partner and we want to give back to the community," she said.

And offering lab work at a relatively low cost, she said, helps those who are financially struggling but need medical testing. She said it's also a good way to give residents important health information.

Wheatley said the community has been very supportive of the fair, and some doctors even referred their patients to wait to have testing there so it is affordable.

Representatives from several organizations who had booths at the fair, Wheatley said, have told her that residents didn't simply pick up the free items they had, they also asked questions. Wheatley said plans for next year's fair are already under way. She said planning begins in February.

County: Has full-time technology employee

In response to the Council's action, Rogers said he had not discussed the IT position with Young and believed the magistrates discussing the issue with Young was out of order. He said he received an email from Young about the issue but it went to a junk mailbox.

At last week's regular Taylor County Fiscal Court meeting, Rogers asked if any of the magistrates would share their conversation with Young.

Magistrate Matt Pendleton said Young called and said he was seriously considering asking the Council to approve a full-time position. He said Young didn't ask his opinion on the subject. In response, Pendleton said he suggested that Young call Rogers about the issue.

"[The mayor] did not call me," Rogers said. "I don't feel like accepting a phone call from an elected official is out of order," Pendleton said.

County Treasurer Melissa Williams said paying Smith's entire salary will cost the county about $25,000 in additional pay.

Magistrate John Gaines asked if Smith will have enough work to perform for the county to generate a 40-hour work week.

Smith said he was hired two years ago and, at that point, it wasn't clear how much work he would perform for the city versus the county.

"I'll be honest, it's been hard to keep head above water."

Magistrate Ed Gorin asked if Smith could be trained to write grant applications in addition to his IT duties. Smith said he would do that if he receives training.

Campbellsville resident Betty Jane Gorin-Smith told the Court that a person must be certified to write some grant applications.

Gorin made a motion to pay Smith's entire salary and for him to help apply for grants when possible, which Magistrate James Jones seconded. The motion was unanimously approved. Magistrate Tommy Corbin had to leave the meeting before the vote because of an emergency.

State Fair

Taylor County will sponsor the opening reception at this year's Kentucky State Fair, which is in August.

State Fair representative Bryan Blair said last year's sponsor has passed on being this year's sponsor. Blair said Taylor and a few other counties were selected to be approached about the sponsorship.

Blair said the opening reception lasts from two to three hours and many state dignitaries attend. He said being a sponsor also guarantees that a county's name will be on signs and advertisements.

The cost to sponsor the reception is $9,000. Blair said he believes that the Taylor County Tourist Commission has agreed to help with the cost. Blair said renting a booth at the fair, as the county has done for several years, costs $1,275. When becoming a sponsor at the fair, the county will receive a booth in a high traffic area for free.

Rogers said he believes sponsoring the reception could be good for the county in an economic development sense.

"You're gonna get a lot of play for your dollars and that's pretty cheap advertisement," he said.

Several of the magistrates said they would like to become a sponsor, but don't believe the county can afford it.

Rogers said the county has $10,000 in its cultural activities line item that could be used to pay the cost. He said local industries and businesses could be asked to help with the cost.

"We're looking at promoting Taylor County here," he said.

Magistrate Tommy Corbin said he believes the sponsorship sounds like cheap advertising.

"I think we can recoup the money," he said.

Corbin made a motion to sponsor the reception, which Gaines seconded.

In a roll call vote, Jones, Gaines and Corbin voted to sponsor the reception, while Pendleton, Gorin and Richard Phillips voted "no." Rogers broke the tie by voting to sponsor the reception.

Also at the meeting:

• Taylor County Jailer Hack Marcum said a recent inspection at the Taylor County Detention Center went very well.

He said three items were noted, including that some inmates were housed in a multi-purpose room, a smoke evacuation system hadn't been scheduled for repair and a fire extinguisher system inspection hadn't been signed. He said the issues are minor and have since been addressed.

As of the meeting, Marcum said there were 178 inmates at the jail generating revenue for the county. He said that is a record, as is the 133 state inmates housed at the jail two weeks ago.

• After a lengthy discussion, the Court agreed to appoint Coy Neat as the county's electrical inspector for a four-year term.

• Magistrates had first reading repealing an ordinance banning synthetic drugs in Taylor County. County Attorney John Bertram said state officials recommended the action after state legislators approved a state law banning the drugs.

• Magistrates voted to use the Gaddie Shamrock company to chip and seal county roads. In the 2012-2013 budget, about $900,000 has been allocated for magistrates to blacktop county roads. The amount will be divided evenly.

Magistrates agreed to allow themselves to decide if they will use their blacktop money to chip and seal roads in their districts. Chip and sealing a road costs about half of the cost to blacktop a road.

• After much discussion, the Court agreed to begin the process of closing a portion of Cat Hollow Road, which landowners say is impassable.

• The Court approved paying $951.75 to install a metal frame around a mural hung on the side of the Taylor County Courthouse.

• Laura Wilds and Bill Netherland were appointed to the Taylor County Tourist Commission for three-year terms. Roger Sabo was appointed to the Board of Appeals for a three-year term.

• The Court approved striping/sealing at the Community Center and Taylor County Public Library. The work will cost a total of $2,200.

• Rogers told the Court that the county has received a $6,039.09 dividend check from the Kentucky Association of Counties.

• Requests for work on county roads were approved. The requests included repairs to potholes and tiles, road shoulder work, mowing and replacing signs.

• The Court had first reading of a 15 mph speed limit on Rolling Acres Road.

• Four budget amendments were approved. In the general fund, $626,888.67 was transferred from many line items to the transfer reserve line item. In the road fund, $87,591.04 was moved from the miscellaneous revenue, road aid and recovery line items to the reserve fund. Nearly $310,000 was moved from several line items in the jail fund to the reserve line item. Lastly, $4,400 was moved from the ASAP grant to the program support line item.

• A little more than $3.3 million has been collected in county occupational taxes since the beginning of this fiscal year. When subtracting expenses and refunds, net proceeds are $3,258,145.40. Tax Clerk Sherry Kerr said the amount is about $8,000 ahead when compared to this time last fiscal year.

Campbellsville High School's Destiny Wilson, Hannah Milby of Taylor County and Green County's Rachel Marr and Kasey Estes, above, participated in the East-West All-Star Softball Series at the University of Louisville over the weekend. Marr was on the West Juniors with the other three on the West Seniors. The West Seniors won all three of their games, defeating the West Juniors 6-4 and the East Juniors 2-0 on Saturday and the East Seniors 20-0 on Sunday. CHS Lady Eagles' head coach Dale Estes, at right, poses with Wilson and Milby, who both had hits in Sunday's triumph. Estes was a member of the West All-Stars coaching staff. Wilson, headed to Lindsey Wilson College, also was awarded with her All-State honorable mention certificate during the weekend activities.

CU athletics finishes record-setting 2011-12 season

Campbellsville University athletics posted one of its best finishes ever in the Learfield College Sports Directors' Cup standings for 2011-2012, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) announced recently.

CU finished the year in the top 26th percentile ranked 51st of 195 institutions with a point total of 249.5, its highest total in the Directors' Cup standings since ranking 51st in 2006-2007 with 341 points. It is CU's third-best point total in the history of the NAIA Directors' Cup and fifth-highest final ranking.

The all-sports trophy awards points for 12 sports depending on where an institution finishes in the NAIA post-season tournament. In 2011-2012, Campbellsville qualified for NAIA postseason play in seven of the 12 sports. As a whole, CU qualified 22 of its 23 sports teams for national postseason play in the NAIA or National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA), as well as NAIA emerging sports cheer-leading and men's and women's bowling.

Of those seven sports, the Tiger wrestling team led the way with a third-place finish at the NAIA Championships for 85 points. All of Campbellsville's points came in the winter and spring with women's basketball, men's basketball, baseball and men's tennis earning 25 points each with finishes of 29th and 17th, respectively. Lady Tiger track and field collected 29.5 points in the indoor season and 35 points in the outdoor season, led by All-American triple jumper Tiosha Beasley at each national meet.

CU is one of six Mid-South Conference teams to earn points in the Directors' Cup. Lindsey Wilson College finished fifth in the national standings with 700 points, followed by the University of the Cumberlands in 21st place with 460.5 points. Georgetown was 45th with 261 points, led by the football team's and women's basketball team's semi-final appearances. Shawnee State University and the University of Rio Grande each earned points, finishing 88th and 145th, respectively.

Azusa Pacific University won the Learfield Sports Director's Cup with a total of 918 points.

In the NCCAA, Campbellsville finished sixth in the Division I President's Cup all-sports trophy standings for 2011-2012 with 33 points. CU had a national championship in men's tennis, a national runner-up in softball, third-place finish in women's tennis and fifth-place posting in women's outdoor track and field. No points were awarded for CU's football championship in the Victory Bowl.

California Baptist University used its softball national championship win over CU to win the NCCAA President's Cup, edging Cedarville University 93-91.

NFHS reports show numbers way up

For the 2011-2012 school year, participation in high school sports in the Commonwealth ballooned to more than 70,000 students according to data collected from the membership and reported to the National Federation of High Schools (NFHS) as part of their annual participation survey.

For the first time, actual participation numbers were determined by school sport rosters as submitted electronically by the membership, versus a triennial survey in past years. 40,103 boys and 30,774 girls were part of a high school level team in KHSAA sanctioned sports and sport-activities for 2011-12, compared to 32,886 boys and 18,286 girls in the 1989-90 school year.

Football participation is at an all-time high in the Commonwealth, with 14,042 boys listed on rosters compared to 7,195 in 1989-90. Baseball, basketball, soccer and track all have more than 6,000 boys competing this past year while basketball, soccer, softball, track and volleyball each had more than 5,000 girls competing with volleyball showing the highest level of participation (6,147 girls).

"I think our schools are really seeing the fruits of their labors with our emphasis on girls sports, and reporting and awareness related to Title IX," said KHSAA Commissioner Julian Tackett. "In 1989-90, we had only basketball with more than 3,000 girls participating and now we have five different sports with more than 5,000 participation slots in each. These opportunities show vast improvement for the girls in our schools but we still have plenty of work to do. I am particularly pleased with the fact that we have more than 6,000 students playing fast pitch softball (1,000 more than slow pitch softball) and more than 5,600 in girls' soccer, two sports we didn't have in 1989-90; and volleyball participation has exploded from 70 schools with 780 participants in 1989-90 to 255 schools having 6,147 participants in 2012-2013.

"Interscholastic sports is the absolute best opportunity to ensure students stay involved representing their school and maintain better academic and attendance records, all of which are critically important to the academic goals of our Commonwealth."

Dead period begins on Monday

The Dead Period, the annual moratorium on Kentucky high school-sponsored team and individual activity, begins at midnight on Monday and runs through 11:59 p.m. on Monday, July 9.

The Dead Period was adopted nearly 20 years ago by member schools in response to concerns about year-round play and practice and parental and coaching desire for some down time from interscholastic play. Member schools adopted the period of June 25 to July 9 as a time of inactivity, which followed the pattern of the historic idling of southern textile mills and this time allows administrators, coaches, student-athletes and their families a time where they are not committed to school play.

Insects attack fishin' shade trees

is an outdoors writer.

An old green lawn chair sits at the end of my lot on the bank of the lake. It is located beneath a couple of poplar trees.

I often slip down to the chair with a container of worms and try my luck for bluegill. Sometimes my grandkids accompany me. The gills usually cooperate.

Several times when I had been in the area late in the afternoon, I noticed the grass looked like it was wet. But with the hot dry weather that didn't seem possible, but I didn't give it much thought.

A few days ago, wearing swim trunks and a tee shirt, I headed for my chair with worms and a rod and reel in hand. I noticed the chair looked a bit damp, but the old man (me) ignored it. That is until I started to get up and head for the house after catching a half dozen bluegill.

Oops! As I stood up the chair came with me. It was stuck to my large posterior. No, it wasn't too large for the chair. The chair was stuck to my swim trunks. Well, I started to pull the chair from the trunks and down started the trunks. Glad no one was around or I probably would have been posted on You Tube, or maybe America's Funniest Home Videos.

Once the swim trunks were pulled from the chair, it was obvious further investigation was in order. It was sticky everywhere under the poplar trees, and the leaves seemed to be shinny with "goo".

In all my years wandering in the woods, I had never seen anything quite like it.

Arriving in the house, I first removed the trunks and my wife, Phyllis instructed me to put some spray stuff she uses before placing them in the laundry basket. Next, I headed for the computer to post a query on Facebook.

Within a couple of minutes, my grandson, Denver sent me a note as did a fellow from Canada, explaining it is a common problem with poplars with what is called tulip tree scale insects. According to Denver, it is especially bad this year because of the warm winter and dry spring. Apparently, Denver learned about the poplar scale insect problem from a Boy Scout outing.

According to Garden Guides.com, the tulip tree scale (insect) sucks the tree's sap and is especially harmful to saplings. Even in mature trees, the scales are a nuisance. They secrete a sticky, sugary substance that attracts ants and wasps, which can exacerbate the scale damage with the harm they themselves do. Additionally, this sugary mix generally leads to mold growth that can damage the tulip tree's leaves and twigs.

But, it said nothing about sticking to your swim trunks and tee shirt.

The poplar is the state tree of Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee.

I since have learned numerous friends have had similar problems with the insects and sticky goo in the past, but not the extent of this year. Now, I note my neighbor's poplars also are infected. Just seems to be the poplars.

Several sources have suggested spraying the trunk of trees and any limbs I can reach with a systemic insect control chemical. Anyone have any specific suggestions of a brand to use? It also has been suggested to use a dormant oil spray in early spring.

Guess, I'll have to cover the old chair with newspapers the next time I head down to bother the bluegill.

od), it states that:
"Students may not receive coaching or training from school personnel (either salaried or non-salaried) and school facilities, uniforms, nicknames, transportation or equipment shall not be used each year in any KHSAA sanctioned sport or cheerleading squad during the period beginning June 25, and going through July 9. School funds may not be expended in support of interscholastic athletics in any KHSAA sanctioned sport during this period. These restrictions shall not apply to any postseason wrap-up activities, celebrations and recognition events relating to a spring sports team at a school which participated in that KHSAA state championship play in that particular sport during that particular year."

KHSAA Hall of Fame Class of 2013

Members of the newest class of the Dawahares/KHSAA Hall of Fame were introduced to the public and enjoyed a round of golf at the 26th annual Dawahares/KHSAA Hall of Fame Golf Scramble on Tuesday at the Marriott Griffin Gate Resort Hotel in Lexington.
"It's amazing to see the support this Hall of Fame enjoys from the people who participate in the scramble every year. We have Hall of Famers who were inducted more than 20 years ago and they still come back and play every year," said KHSAA Commissioner Julian Tackett. "It's such an honor to see the new Hall of Famers introduced for the first time. It's a great time but it's also very humbling when you see just how much this honor means to them."

Representatives of eight of the nine members of the 2013 Class of the Dawahares/KHSAA Hall of Fame were in attendance at Tuesday's festivities. Members of the 2013 class are Pascal Benson, Julie Ditty, Tyson Gay, Burney Jenkins, the late Roger Klein, Frank Miklavcic, Ron Myers, Jamie Walz Richey and John Dee Wilson.

Two other individuals have previously been voted into the Hall of Fame but declined induction at that time. Kelly Coleman (1989) and the late John Reynolds (1994) have yet to accept the honor. They or their representatives would be added to the induction class the year the honor is accepted.

Head scratchers

• While Major League Baseball salaries continue to go up, why is that most players cannot seem to find a razor?

• How can it take 39 years to figure out what Secretariat's record time was in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico? About as odd on why the University of Kentucky figured out it had a national championship in football in 1951 although the Sagarin Ratings, who bestowed the honor on the Wildcats, weren't even around.

• Sort of odd that Campbellsville High School, which made the Fifth Region Baseball Tournament semi-finals had only one total player on the Coaches' All-Fifth Region while schools with less than five wins had two or more in the honorable mention list.

Earnhardt Jr. is back in victory lane

Dale Earnhardt Jr. won his first NASCAR Sprint Cup race since June 15, 2008 on Sunday in Michigan.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. is back in victory lane. Earnhardt snapped a four-year losing streak as he won Sunday's Sprint Cup race at Michigan International Raceway, the same track where he last won in 2008.

"Son of a gun, I can't really believe we won," Earnhardt said. "It was a great race. We had a good car, and the work in the pits was amazing. The most important thing about this win was it's for the fans. They've stuck with me and I appreciate it."

"Man, those last 15 laps were the longest I've ever run."

Earnhardt led 95 laps and finished nearly six seconds ahead of runner-up Tony Stewart.

"Well, I think to finish where we did today was pretty amazing," Stewart said. "We were 42nd quickest yesterday, so for us to run this close to the front is really something."

Matt Kenseth started the race from the sixth spot, but fell back, and had to work his way back to the front.

"We had a good car, but we had to work on the car to get it where we wanted it," said Kenseth. "The crew did a great job, and overall it was a good day, but we didn't have what Dale did."

The remaining top 10 finishers were Greg Biffle, Jimmie Johnson, Jeff Gordon, Clint Bowyer, Juan Montoya, pole-sitter Marcos Ambrose and Kevin Harvick.

A three-car wreck on lap 126 of the 200-lap race took out the cars driven by Joey Logano, Kasey Kahne, and David Gilliland.

"It looked like we were going to be OK after the restart," Logano said. "I came up on a car (No. 38 David Gilliland) on my outside, and I just got loose."

It was also bad news for another Joe Gibbs Racing driver, Denny Hamlin. He spun out after another restart on lap 134 and finished 34th.

Logano takes fifth Nationwide race

The roll continued for Joey Logano, who fought off a determined bid from James Buescher to win Saturday's Nationwide race at Michigan International Speedway.

After a restart with four laps left, Logano crossed the finish line .208 seconds ahead of runner-up Buescher to claim his fifth victory in 11 Nationwide starts this season and the 14th of his career.

"Racing there with James at the end was a lot of fun," Logano said. "I knew exactly what he was doing the whole time, laying back there and trying to make that run on the last lap. I knew he was going to slide it down into 1, and I felt like, as long as I had position on him, I could pin him down enough to get a big enough lead off the corner."

"He did exactly what I thought he was going to do, and I was able to work my game plan and come out ahead enough to win the race."

Kurt Busch came home third, followed by Cole Whitt, pole-sitter Austin Dillon, Sam Hornish, Michael McDowell, Paul Menard, Brian Scott and Brad Keselowski.

Weekend racing: This is road racing weekend for the Nationwide and Cup teams. The Nationwide series will be at Elkhart Lake, Wisc. while the Cup teams will be at Sonoma, California. The trucks do not race again until June 28.

Saturday — Nationwide Road America 200 (race 14 of 33) at 3 p.m. on ESPN.

Sunday — Sprint Cup SaveMart 350 (race 16 of 36) at 2 p.m. on TNT.

Racing Trivia Question: Which Cup team does Greg Biffle drive for?

Last week's question: Where will the first race of the 10-race Chase for the Championship be held this year? Answer: Chicagoland Speedway, Sept. 16.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION

SATURDAY, JUNE 23RD, 2012 - 10:30 A.M.

RICKY RAKES FARMS, LLC

77.55 ACRES OF FARMLAND - 4 TRACTS

PLUS FARM MACHINERY & EQUIPMENT

RICKY RAKES ROAD - BRADFORDSVILLE MARION COUNTY, KENTUCKY (OFF PLEASANT VALLEY ROAD)

Due to other interests, David Rakes, Lee Rakes & Chad Rakes have decided to dissolve their corporation, Ricky Rakes Farms, LLC, and have commissioned The Lancaster Agency, Inc. to offer 77.55 acres of outstanding farmland in 4 different tracts, plus farm machinery & equipment, at ABSOLUTE AUCTION ON SATURDAY, JUNE 23rd @ 10:30 A.M.

THE LAND

A total of 77.55 acres, per survey, of several different types of farmland, including some great bottomland, cropland, pastureland & woodland, as well as a pond, tucked away in the southeastern corner of Marion County close to the Casey County & Taylor County lines. You can do it all...Grow crops, raise livestock, hunt, fish, 4-wheel & live right here on the land! This land offers some impressive home sites surrounded by the gorgeous knobland & countryside of central Kentucky. It also has convenient access right off State Highway 49 via Pleasant Valley Road & Ricky Rakes Road, which are both county roads, as well as easy access to county water & electricity.

TRACT 1 - 12.86 ACRES

12.86 acres of bottomland bounded by the Big South Fork with a soil combination of Sensabaugh gravelly silt loam & Nolin silt loam.

TRACT 2 - 8.33 ACRES

8.33 acres of bottomland bounded by the Big South Fork with a soil combination of Sensabaugh gravelly silt loam & Nolin silt loam.

TRACT 3 - 5.34 ACRES

5.34 acres of cropland/pastureland, or an excellent home site, consisting mainly of Elk silt loam soil.

TRACT 4 - 51.02 ACRES

51.02 acres consisting of pastureland with a nice stand of clover, plus a pond & woodland offering water and shade for the livestock & an excellent home building site. Improvements include a 40' X 48' barn with a feed lot & an adjoining 13' X 17' concrete block shop building, a 54' X 26' equipment shed & a 12' X 20' concrete block storage building. There is a water meter located on this tract as well as electricity. This was the site of the Rakes' former homestead.

THE FARM MACHINERY & EQUIPMENT

Ford 8340 4-Wheel Drive 150 HP Diesel Tractor w/ Cab (approximately 3700 hours) w/ 4 sets of Hydraulic Remotes, 540 & 1000 RPM PTO, and a Great Bend 660 Loader w/ Hay Spear & a Quick Attach Bucket, Ford 5000 Diesel Tractor (Motor Has Been Overhauled - Approximately 200 Hours Since The Overhaul), Massey Ferguson 1560 Roll Baler, Rhino 16' Bat Wing Mower, Rake Caddy Hay Rake, Massey Ferguson 6' Mowing Machine, 1976 Ford Dump Truck, Bush Hog SO 840 6' Mower, Goose Neck Double Axle Tandem 18' Trailer, Head Gate, Round Bale Feeder, 8' Feeder, 3 Point Hitch 3 Bottom Plow, 3 Point Hitch 2 Row Cultivator, 3 Point Hitch Carry All, 3 Point Hitch Weight, 2 Row C Tractor Cultivator, 3 Row Tobacco Setter, Misc. ORDER OF SALE

1st Offering
To be offered by the acre, as a whole, 77.55 acres, per survey.

2nd Offering
To be offered by the acre, utilizing the pick & choose auction method. The highest bidder will have the priority to select the tract, or contiguous tracts desired at that price. The amount per acre will be multiplied by the number of acres in the tract, or tracts selected, to determine the total amount. This process will continue until all tracts in this offering have been selected.

NOTE: NO SALE IS FINAL UNTIL ALL OFFERINGS HAVE BEEN MADE. THE PROPERTY WILL BE SOLD IN THE MANNER REALIZING THE MOST MONEY FOR THE SELLERS.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

- * There will be a 10% Buyer's Premium added to all winning bids on real estate and farm machinery & equipment to determine the final sales and purchase price.
- * 6% Kentucky State Sales Tax will be added to the final sales price, (except those items excluded under the definition of "farm machinery"), or unless the purchaser is tax exempt and has a certificate on file with The Lancaster Agency, Inc.
- * Cash or equivalent to be presented as payment the day of the auction for all farm machinery & equipment items.
- * Any purchaser of real estate will pay a 20% non-refundable deposit the day of the auction with the balance due on or before July 23rd, 2012.
- * 2012 real estate property taxes will be pro-rated between the Sellers and Buyer(s) as of the deed date.
- * Possession and use will be granted with the deed.

NOTE

THE REAL ESTATE & ALL FARM EQUIPMENT ITEMS ARE BEING SOLD "AS IS".
